Re: Georges Dreyfus' talk on Dharmakirti's notion of intentionality at the Mind & Reality conference

Phenomenal intentionality- directed by SatSanga, a spiritual gathering

Epistemology intentionality - directed by thinkers, a mental gathering thus, a conference is a mental gathering, as he mentioned wherein the layer that come across this two faculties above is what an intelligent one perceives as reality

A Quick Introduction to Dharmakirti

A short note:

Dharmakīrti (法稱): 陳那 (Dignāga) 的再傳弟子，印度佛教唯識宗因明學大師，曾任那爛陀寺 (Nālandā) 住持，生活於公元七世紀中期。

Dharmakirti (ca. 7th century), was an Indian scholar and one of the Buddhist founders of Indian philosophical logic. He was one of the primary theorists of Buddhist atomism, according to which the only items considered to exist are momentary Buddhist atoms and states of consciousness.

My notion of intentionality at Mind & Reality

My notion of intentionality at Mind & Reality -

Mind: 心智 = the intellect to process representation and sense-data (which feeds the perception)

心量 = pure mind-matter

(a sort of fine wave-patterns/particles that compose the reality, including re-shaping the intellect)

Reality: the way the subject relates to the universe (the total-given)

境界 = Stages of reality

神境界 = One reality that being embodied in the representation of "I"

佛境界 = One reality that manifests itself at all space-time fabrication, even beyond

intentionality = the will power of the divine (one that realizes the Self, Self as a collective term)

an evolving entity of its own

The way how the mind operates is more than reflecting upon of the nature of cognitive events - what those intellectuals cannot encompass here is the issue of sense-data. 'impression integrated into conceptual scheme' (knowledge, by his term) actually involves a great deal of how the subject process the sense-data. Besides conceptual schemes, which differs from culture to culture, there are other schemes that unfolds/rolls our scope of time and space.

Eastern mind faculties are difficult to be fully incorporated into western conceptual scheme (western knowledge tree), because what really matters here is not only verbal-constructions, but experience, the subjective matter and the guru-power (what the bleep is that :-|)

Thus, mind would be better treated as an evolving entity of its own.

Who is "he" when you refer by " (knowledge, by his term) " ?

The insufficiency of epistemology you talk about in the above response seems to be relevant to the new article by Mr. gustav, "Between the Indeterminable and the Determined ..." ... interesting issue!
