

techman / February 21, 2011 08:04PM

[\[International Cooperation\]\[Medicine\] Singapore Agency and Taiwan Hospitals Team up on Medical Technology](#)
[International Cooperation][Medicine] Singapore Agency and Taiwan Hospitals Team up on Medical Technology
(Chinese Version)

CNA (2011/02/21) Singapore's leading science agency signed an agreement with two Taiwan hospitals Monday to improve bilateral cooperation in medical technology.

The Agency for Science, Technology and Research (A*STAR), the Singapore's government scientific research institution, will work in partnership with National Taiwan University Hospital (NTUH) and Chang Gung Medical Hospital (CGMH) on the development of a new diagnostic tool and its application in clinical trials.

A*STAR, NTUH and CGMH will collaborate on the testing of a new diagnostic imaging tool that will allow doctors to identify organ fibrosis and thus provide more effective treatment for patients with liver and kidney disease.

Further Information:

CNA 2011/02/21

-----
National Science Council International Cooperation Sci-Tech Newsbrief
-----

Edited 1 time(s). Last edit at 02/21/2011 08:09PM by techman.

---