[Education] Older Elementary Kids Don't Like Themselves: Study (Chinese Version)

Taipei Times (2009/11/23) The older elementary school students are, the less they like themselves, a survey suggested on 22nd-November.

Yu-ju CHOU, a researcher at National Central University's Graduate Institute of Learning and Instruction (sic.), conducts a nationwide investigation over 811 elementary students, finding that 75 % of third graders like themselves, 68% feel happy and half enjoy going to school; however, only 40% of sixth graders report themselves to be happy or like themselves, and less than 40 % say they like to go to school.

Up to 50 % of respondents report playing with their parents, classmates or siblings is their happiest time, more than with video games, internet or toys.
